Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Dr. James H. Snook is today a calm man.

Snook, in the electric chair will be the last of the Philadelphia-Ohio case, the prosecutor who hammered and killed Miss Theora Hix, his co-ed, was sentenced to death on the night of June 13. He will be compelled to make that common march to the "chair," right across the aisle from the knee down, in the same manner as have had many of the "scholarship" slayers, Paul Jaworski, the Pennsylvania "killer," and other comparatively recent notorious murderers.

But the doctor isn't worrying about it. He made that plain in an interview in his cell at the county jail today.

"I haven't thought about it," said Snook when asked how he felt about the prospect of entering "the green door" that leads to the electric chair.

Judge Scarlett Has Sent Four to Chair

Columbus, O., Aug. 15.—Dr. James H. Snook will be the last of the Philadelphia-Ohio case, the prosecutor who hammered and killed Miss Theora Hix, his co-ed, was sentenced to death on the night of June 13. He will be compelled to make that common march to the "chair," right across the aisle from the knee down, in the same manner as have had many of the "scholarship" slayers, Paul Jaworski, the Pennsylvania "killer," and other comparatively recent notorious murderers.

When he was visited by reporters, he was unperturbed, as usual.

"I have any statement to make," he was asked.

"No," he replied. "Before I could say anything like that I would have to consult my counsel."

"You tell everything about your case when you were on the stand," was another question.

"No," he answered. "I have lots left over. There are salient facts yet to be told."

He reminded his audience that his "affair" with Miss Hix lasted three years, whereas he "had only six or eight hours to tell it."

He evidently meant his direct examination for he had been on the witness stand seven hours, in a cross examination.

"And if he had recalled slitting the girl's throat with his pen knife he replied he had not."

"Is there any truth to the report that Mrs. Snook plans to divorce you?" he was asked.

"No indeed," he replied. "She was in court yesterday wasn't she?"

Snook refused to comment upon the plans of his lawyers to file motion for a new trial. He said he felt "pretty good, everything considered."

If he felt in any way apprehensive over the prospect of going to the electric chair he concealed it well beneath his level exterior. His appetite remains good. He ate a hearty meal of pork and (Continued on Page 4)

EASTERN AREA HIT BY HEAVY RAIN STORMS

Eight Die From Bolts And Drowning; Oil Blazes High

Philadelphia, Aug. 15.—Eight fatalities and property damage that will run into six figures were attributed today either directly or indirectly to the series of severe electrical storms that swept this vicinity in the past 24 hours. Four of the deaths were due to lightning and four to drownings.

Five storms swept the city alone beginning with a torrential down-pour in the afternoon and continuing until far past midnight. The terrible Oley Valley in Eastern Berks county also was hard hit for the second day in succession.

Auto Takes Plunge

Three of the drownings took place at the height of the downpour last night when an automobile containing four occupants crashed through a bridge, fell into the Delaware river near pier 75 here. The rain blinded the driver.

The first death from lightning occurred when James Thompson, a gardener from Wayne, was killed while working on an estate in Bryn Mawr. A short time later Arthur Varvill, a roofer, was killed by another bolt while at work.

Two other persons were killed, another paralyzed and a third seriously injured by a bolt which struck a peach-packing plant at Hammonton, N. J. The dead: Tony Ordielle, 22, of Hammonton, and Annie Garrard, 21, of Alamo, Ga. Miss Garrard was a Georgia school teacher who came north to spend the summer with relatives. She was working in the plant to obtain extra money for her wedding wardrobe.

Crude Oil Blazes

About 14,000 gallons of crude oil went up in flames at Boothwyn, near Chester, when fire followed in the wake of a bolt of lightning.

Ironstone Creek that winds through the Sleepy Oley Valley in eastern Berks county again left its banks following the torrential down-pour that swept over that section for the second day in succession. Bovertown again was hard hit and thousands of acres of land were inundated. Several families were reported marooned near Morvill while a dam was threatened with destruction at Colebrookdale.

Abandon Hope In Search for Flier

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—Virtually all hope that John Kasper, co-pilot on the ill-fated Thompson Aeronautical corporation amphibian plane, Miss Detroit, was still alive was abandoned today when the rescue planes and coast guard cutters returned without news of the flier.

Kasper was the only one of the four persons aboard the plane who is unaccounted for. Cy Caldwell, pilot, Mrs. Robert Little of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and C. A. Lupton of Paterson, N. J., were rescued by lake scouts.

The plane crashed late Tuesday in a dense fog and electrical storm.

NAVY REDUCTION PROCEEDS APACE; 'ADMIRALS' TALK

President Shows Regard For Naval Men In Sea Problem

CRUISERS FORM BIG OBSTACLE

Search for "Yard Stick" To Measure Equality Of U. S.-Britain

Washington, Aug. 15.—Negotiations for a British-American naval agreement proceeded apace today with the navy high command somewhat mollified over the assurances given by President Hoover that the expert views of "the admirals" are not to be disregarded while "the statesmen" reach an agreement among themselves.

It is no secret that the new administration's navy policy has come in for some severe, if anonymous, criticism in high naval circles. It began with Ambassador Dawes' famous remark in his pilgrim's speech in London that the failure of most disarmament conferences could be attributed to "the admirals" and that if disarmament were ever realized it would have to be by "statesmen" taking the matter out of naval hands.

Since that speech of Dawes' the navy has been in a suspicious frame of mind concerning the whole trend of the Washington-London negotiations. President Hoover's summary suspension of the cruiser-building program upon which the navy had counted to overcome British cruiser superiority, only served to increase the suspicion and the covert sniping at the administration's policy.

Navy Heads Counted

It was to allay this suspicion and still the criticism, and obtain, if possible, the sincere cooperation of the navy heads that President Hoover had the general board at the White House yesterday for breakfast. "The admirals" were acquainted with the whole state of the negotiations with the MacDonald government for a naval agreement, and were given an opportunity to express their own opinions as to what should and should not be done.

How successful the president's gesture toward "the admirals" will remain to be seen, but at any rate the navy now feels that it is to have a choice in and be consulted about the reductions which President Hoover and Premier MacDonald are mutually desirous of making.

The whole sticking point in the Anglo-American negotiations is the question of cruisers. On virtually every other point there is already substantial agreement between London and Washington.

Yet, despite the "substantial progress" that is regularly reported from both the state department and the British foreign office, there still exists a tremendous gulf of difference as to how Britain's cruiser superiority is to be met.

Scrappling Not Approved

British a durability is hard set against any extensive scrappling of cruisers in order to come down to the American level. Apparently, the admiralty has succeeded in winning the MacDonald government to support of this position. On the other hand, for reasons of economy and other wise, President Hoover is unwilling to launch upon a building program to bring the American navy up to cruiser parity with the British.

There the negotiations have stuck for weeks, with "the statesmen" on both sides trying to find a yardstick which will be capable of a new system of measuring naval strength. Thus far they haven't found it.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE TOKIO BOUND ON LONGEST TRIP

Non-Stop Flight Will Make Record For Distance

WEATHER FINE AS SHIP LEAVES

70-Mile An Hour Is Progress Reported By Eckener

Frederichshafen, Germany, Aug. 15.—As dawn broke over Europe the hydrogen-making Graf Zeppelin was heading northeast over central Germany, bound from here to Tokio on the long second leg of her round-the-world flight.

Thousands joined in thrifty "bonnets" wishing Godspeed to the 20 passengers and the crew of 41 aboard as the mighty liner of the air pointed her blunt nose toward the east at 4:35 a. m. today (10:35 p. m. last night Salem time).

Fine weather conditions greeted the Graf at the beginning of her flight and she maintained an average speed of about 70 miles an hour during the first few hours as she headed toward Berlin.

At 5:30 a. m. (11:30 p. m. Salem time), she passed that she was passing over Ulm in Wurttemberg, about 60 miles northeast of here. A little more than an hour later, at 6:45 a. m. (12:45 a. m. Salem time), she reported she was passing over Nuernberg, Bavaria, about 150 miles northeast of this starting point.

Forges Steadily Ahead

Forging steadily onward on a northeast course, the Graf passed Bayreuth, Bavaria, at 7:20 a. m. (1:20 a. m. Salem time). At the time of passing over Bayreuth, which is 175 miles from here, she radiated that "all was well."

A short time later, at 7:45 a. m. (3:45 a. m. Salem time), she passed over Hof, near the border of Bavaria and Saxony, and 200 miles northeast of here.

The start of the Graf on the longest non-stop flight ever attempted was an auspicious one. Everything went smoothly.

Bathed in a glow of ground lights which reflected resplendently on her silver-sheathed sides, the huge craft made an awe-inspiring picture as she soared upward less than ten minutes after having been moved out from her hangar.

Steadily gaining height she headed into the northeast and in a few minutes only a dim outline of her cigar-like contour and the gleam of her cabin lights could be seen.

Soon even these disappeared from view as the huge craft, on end on the landing field, raked upward toward a sky from which the night shadows were just beginning to be dispelled by the first pink of dawn.

BOMBS HURLED AT THEATERS IN AKRON, DAMAGE

Explosives Fall Short Of Marks; Nearby Places Are Rocked

Akron, O., Aug. 15.—War against theater bombers was renewed by police here today following attempts to blow up the Gem and Dayton neighborhood theaters last night.

The bombs were hurled toward the theater buildings from passing automobiles. In both instances, however, the bombs fell shy of their marks, causing more damage to nearby establishments than to the theaters themselves.

The bomb which was originally intended for the Dayton theater, landed in front of a confectionery store next door, causing approximately $200 damages. At the Gem, the bomb exploded between the theater building and the structure next to it.

The explosions mark the seventh and eighth in the three-month theater bombing war which resulted from a wage disagreement between motion picture operators and owners.

Prosperity Predicted For Period By Ohio Economist

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—Continued prosperity for the remainder of the year is the encouraging picture painted by Colonel Leonard E. Ayres, prominent Cleveland banker and economist, in a business review issued today.

"It still seems probable that the figures for industrial output and for profits in the third quarter will reach new high levels in many lines, and it is beginning to appear almost equally sure that the momentum of activity and of confidence will carry through to the end of the year in enough lines to insure a long list of new high annual records for 1929 in trade, industry, transportation and finance," Col. Ayres said.

The autumn and holiday trade of retail stores and mail-order houses promises to be better this year than ever before.

MR. FORD'S VIEWS

The European critic of American and Henry Ford, America's leading industrialist, are paradoxically enough agreed on one point, namely, that making money, for the sake of making money, is childish. Mr. Ford's views of money are well-reasoned, clear and interesting.

"Money," he says, "is like building materials—something to use, if you know how to use it, otherwise nothing more than an advertisement in futility. When a businessman gets money, he is only gathering materials together ready to start his work. If he doesn't see things in that light, he is not and never has been a business man. His money is not a sign of his success; it is the tool which will help him work out his success if he is ever to have any. He has not arrived; he has just reached the second or third rung of the ladder."

Indeed, Mr. Ford goes so far as to state that the man who mistakes his money for success is a failure. It is plain from what he says that Mr. Ford is not only a bold thinker, but an independent thinker.

"If there is any man on earth," he goes on to say, "who should be cured of the illusion that money means anything except as a tool for work, it is the man who has accumulated a lot of it."

Apparently Mr. Ford believes that the business man should devote himself continuously to creative enterprise. One would gather from what he says that the picture of a man sitting on his money-bags is as odious to him as it is to the European intellectual who is always accusing everyone in the United States of money-grubbing. With perhaps the largest fortune in the world, it is nothing if not surprising to hear Mr. Ford take so contemptuous an attitude toward money as a goal. We doubt if there ever lived any rich man who threw so much emphasis upon money as a tool and who poured so much derision upon money as a goal.

It might not be amiss for a lot of the oncoming business men of the younger generation to saturate themselves with Mr. Ford's views. It is a fine idealism that he preaches. It not only is fine idealism, but sturdy common sense. Were his precepts to be generally adopted by American business men, all the force of the European strictures upon Mammonism in the United States would drop away.

Mr. Ford's definition of success is an exacting one. His success is a soldier fighting on behalf of society. And his measuring stick is not the amount of money acquired but the value of the service rendered.

INDUSTRIAL CASUALTIES

The peace-time casualty list from industries of Ohio is staggering and the toll of war dwarfed in comparison. In 1928 there were 229,233 accidents in industry, with a corresponding large number of fatalities. The tremendous economic loss to workers and employers aside from the physical suffering and mental anguish involved, should be sufficient to arouse everyone to a realization of the enormity of the need for greater stimulus in accident prevention.

There is no question that safety consciousness is growing rapidly in Ohio, but the persistence of a high frequency and severity rate for the state as a whole warrants the deep concern of everyone and suggests more intensive organization on the part of employers and the exercise of greater care on the part of the workers.

In an industrial community like Salem the figures from the Industrial Commission's office showing the casualty list for the state last year are of more than passing interest. They are worth real study and concentration, because they touch the lives of every man, woman and child in this city.

Metal goods manufacture heads the casualty list with 61,632 accidents and 114 fatalities; commercial pursuits had 23,201 casualties and 24 fatalities; building erection and demolition, 12,068 with 120 fatalities; blast furnaces and steel works, 13,370 with 93 fatalities, and so on down the line. The figures are enormous—the list of dead awe-inspiring.

Thomas P. Kearns, of the state division of safety and hygiene, sums up the whole thing in this fashion:

"When it is considered that, in a single year, the time lost by industrial accidents in this state would consume the man-power of one hundred individuals working steadily for almost three centuries, the tremendous economic loss to workers and employers is instantly apparent."

Safeguards for workmen in industry are now a part of plant equipment everywhere, but there always are workmen who become careless through constant association with these safeguards. Familiarity breeds contempt, someone said, and familiarity with safeguards against accident frequently lead workmen to contempt for them through their own belief that they are immune to accident because of their personal skill.

But the casualty list from Ohio industry does not bear out such a presumption. Workmen who grow careless a single instant not only jeopardize their own lives, but the lives of other workmen, the economic working of the plant, and frequently great sorrow for women and children outside the industry itself. There cannot be too much care exercised in everything workmen do, and if there is this great care exercised by everyone, then the safeguards thrown about the employee by the employer will bring better results and reduce this staggering yearly accident and death rate among workmen.

What Others Say

THE ARMY ECONOMY PLAN

By setting the general staff of the army to work at the job of finding ways and means whereby the expense of the military establishment may be reduced without injuring the national defense system, President Hoover leaves the army in the hands of its friends for examination instead of exposing it to dissection by ill-wishers and politicians. It also is true that the members of the general staff are in a special position to cut and prune with intelligence and discretion if they are so disposed, and there is small likelihood that any suggestions made by them will be crippling in their tendencies, now that the place of aircraft in the scheme of military operation has been fully recognized.

The dangerous aspect of the deputation, if there is a dangerous aspect, is to be found in the use certain elements may try to make of the widespread advertisement that a general plan for reduction of annual outlay on the military force of the country is contemplated. The president's announcement is a temptation to every faddist, pacifist and red plotter in the country to re-engage with renewed vigor in a campaign for the purpose of destroying the army by process of starvation. The army has succeeded in the population have succeeded in reducing the personnel of the regular military force to a point which is far below the minimum consistent with safety. If competent military authorities including the late Secretary Weeks and the late Gen. Leonard Wood, have known what they have been talking about when they have spoken from time to time in face of the studied hostility of the destructivists, even the maintenance of existing summer training camps and of national guard organizations has been uphill work now and again.

We believe in government economy and thrift in the army as well as in other places, and avoidable waste in federal affairs is a sin against the taxpayers of the nation. But it is not as necessary to combat and keep in check extravagant specialists in military matters and those departmental personages who are so wedded to tradition and precedence that the maintenance of a piece of red tape procedure is more important than the saving of a few million dollars. Both elements are of true national defense. But the one is the more dangerous of the two because when the damage they do becomes apparent, the opportunity to repair it without excessive penalty generally is gone.

We do not mean to convey the impression that we are unsympathetic with the object of President Hoover's move for military economy. Quite the contrary. But we do believe that in engaging in the enterprise, the government accepts a little special obligation to keep in check the deleterious forces which will endeavor to take advantage of it, and capitalize it in a misleading way for propaganda purposes. TYPHOID IS STILL TO BE GUARDED AGAINST

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
(United States Senator from New York)

Only a few years ago, typhoid fever was one of the most common and most fatal of diseases. Today it is almost never met, certainly not in a well ordered community.

When I was a medical student we used to hear dreadful tales of the devastation of communities by this dread disease. The bullets of the Spanish war did little harm, but the germs of typhoid killed thousands.

Fortunately for the world, the control of typhoid had been learned before the advent of the World

The corner front on the top of the building occupied by Boone and Campbell on Broadway was removed Monday on account of its dangerous position. A section of it fell during Sunday night.

Lisbon—Capt. Nicholas Way, 65, one of Lisbon's most prominent citizens died last evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Bean, East Washington st. Mrs. Way came to Lisbon 27 years ago as the superintendent and secretary of the New Lisbon Woolen Mills company. He remained in charge of the company until the mill was destroyed by fire several years.

What was so terrible a scourge in previous wars was of little importance in this one. Because of the means of protection provided by the medical corps, the armies escaped it.

The typhoid germ of bacillus is a vigorous and hardy one. In the presence of moisture it will live for months. Even in river or harbor water it will remain alive for weeks. One writer states that the bacillus has lived in a sealed tube for more than a dozen years. When typhoid infected water freezes, the germ will live in the ice for a period of three or four months.

The germ finds its way into the human body through food or drink. Water, milk, contaminated vegetables and other articles of food may carry the bacillus. Careless food may carry the bacillus. Careless food handling is responsible for most cases of typhoid fever.

The person who has once had the disease may be spreading the germs of typhoid for months or even years after full recovery has taken place. Examination of the fecal matter of the urine may reveal them. In some reported cases they have been discovered by such examination years after the patient had the disease.

The "typhoid carrier" usually has a colony of germs growing in the gall bladder. A notable example of this sort is "Typhoid Mary," who has been under quarantine for years, because of the large number of cases of typhoid traced to her.

Every case of typhoid fever means that somebody else had the disease and has passed it on to the present victim. This may be done through food or drink, or possibly the contagion may be carried by flies.

The doctor and nurse will impress upon the members of the family, and all the servants the very great importance of guarding against the transmission of typhoid. If the first patient is properly cared for, that will be the end of the typhoid flurry in that particular family.

It is absolutely essential that the secretions and excretions of the typhoid patient be destroyed. This precaution must continue until after repeated examinations it has been determined that all evidence of the disease has disappeared. Not until then can the victim be released from observation.

SNOOK

beats an hour after he heard the verdict and this morning partook of a substantial breakfast.

His attorney, who incidentally, predicted, in would never "burn," are preparing to make a final desperate effort to save him from the chair. They will file motion for a new trial on Saturday. Judge Henry L. Scarlett, who presided at the trial, probably will grant a hearing on the motion next Monday. If he should overrule the motion on that day, the judge in all likelihood will immediately set the date when Snook will be executed.

The verdict of "guilty of murder in the first degree" without mercy makes it mandatory for the judge to send Snook to the chair. The date can be set for any time after one hundred days from the date when the verdict was returned.

Public approval of the verdict was expressed on all sides in Columbus today. Never in this city's history has sentiment been so pronounced against a defendant. Interviews with "men in the street" carried in a Columbus newspaper today could be epitomized in the phrase "tickled to death that the jury gave him the limit."

On all sides the people were singing the praises of the "boy prosecutor," John J. ("Handsome Jack") Chester, 31 years of age, whose scathing denunciation of the former professor in his closing address to the jury is hailed as a legal masterpiece. His address so swayed the emotions of the tremendous throng in the courtroom, they broke into applause when he concluded his oration.

"I want you members of the jury," said Chester in his ringing finale, "to bring back a verdict that will tell the parents of Theora Hix sitting over there and through those parents the parents of the 12,000 Ohio state university students that Columbus, Ohio, and our great state university is a safe place for them to send their children; that they won't meet dirty dogs like that man down here any more; that the state of Ohio that Franklin county and all the rest of us here will not permit such things to happen. Bring back a verdict that the whole state of Ohio is going to be proud of; a verdict that everybody knows is just and right."

The jury was out only twenty-eight minutes. They reached their verdict on the first ballot. It was "guilty as charged." A vengeance Snook had been brought to trial quickly and he got his medicine from the jury exactly two months to the day after the girl's mutilated

STYLE EDICTS

Paris, Aug. 15.—If ever coming events cast their shadows before, it was perfectly plain to be seen that long coats would be de mode this autumn and winter after the complete triumph of the short jacket ensembles this past spring and present summer. And now comes confirmation to the effect that the designers have definitely finished with the long variety.

Short jackets, either of the same material or of printed mousseline de soie are shown with nearly all of the evening, casino frocks, at Deauville and Lido which are the forerunners of fall fashions. A particularly lovely model consists of a frock of lacy green georgette over which is worn a jacket of black and white printed mousseline de soie with a green line running through the design.

A beige georgette frock has a lace trim around the skirt and long jabot at the front of the bodice. It is worn with a hip length jacket of georgette with insets of the lace.

One designer is showing a jacket of lacquer-red woolen lace with a dainty frock of pale grey crepe de chine which is embroidered with rows of little round, eyelet holes. Another in dull pink georgette has a fluffy band of beige fox and is worn with a frock of the same material.

A charming costume for the country or seaside comes in changing in the natural tone, with a plain straight three-quarter length coat, a circular skirt and blouse of the same shade of crepe de chine, with a scroll-like design in favoring on the front and narrow belt of the same material.

Frocks in printed crepe de chine or mousseline with a yellow background and black design are worn with three-quarter or unlined coats of plain black tulle, of georgette topped off with an all-black hat and the thinnest of black silk stockings, so that the flesh gives from the appearance of a pinky beige.

Rheumatism Is Easy Victim For Modern Konjola

Lady E. Enthusiastic Over Quick Relief She Found In New Medicine

"I didn't think it possible for one medicine to do all that Konjola did for me," said Mrs. Martin Johnson of Mexico Gardens, near Ashtabula, Ohio. "I had tried so many medicines and treatments in my vain search for relief from a stubborn case of rheumatism, that I had just about come to the conclusion that there simply was no relief for me."

But I had not reckoned with Konjola. In a remarkably short time every single trace of this dread affliction was swept from my body. I feel better than for years. And just to think, all the other medicines and treatments I tried failed to help me in the least. I am glad to be able to endorse Konjola, for it proved to me that it is entirely worthy of all the wonderful praise it has been getting."

Macks Take 17-Inning Game From Indians To Increase Lead

Foxx Decides Contest With Homer In 17th

Lefty Grove Given Great Battle By Hudlin; Yanks Lose

By HENRY McEMORE

New York, N. Y., Aug. 15.—What started out to be a determined invasion of the west by the Yankees seems to have turned into nothing more than a sight-seeing tour. For the farther the Yankees go the more they become engaged in the war of second place. Today they are sailing along in the Athletics, having dropped another yesterday when the Tigers took the first of a series, 17 to 13. The Yankees' fielding was pretty good, but the brand of pitching that Phipps, Hoyt, Zachary and Moore gave the champions was worse.

Wagner and Quinn having set the pace, Lefty Grove announced his return to form by pitching and winning a seventeen inning affair with the Indians. Jimmie Foxx's 28th home run and three additional hits in the 17th gave the Macks a 5 to 3 win. It was Grove's 18th victory of the season and his first win since July 25. Moore, Gaston shaded Sad Sam Rice, ending ace of the Browns at Boston beat St. Louis 4 to 1, in the series opener.

Washington scored seven runs in the first inning and went on to take a 11 to 3 decision from the White Sox. Young Ed Walsh started for the Sox but was yanked after pitching to the batters without retiring any of them.

Runners Who Lead Field

Leo Sexton (inset top), Georgetown weight thrower, won the shotput event at the International Track Meet at Stockholm, Sweden, with a heave of 45 feet 2 3/4 inches. Lower left shows Leo Lermond, another American, who won the 1,500 meter run while at the right is seen Eddie Tolon of the University of Michigan, who was victorious in the 100 meter run.

Salem Kiwanis stretched their winning streak in the city baseball league to four straight, defeating the Post Office, 7-6, at Centennial park last night.

Two of the three concrete bridges that were to be built on the new North Georgetown-Westville road have been completed by H. C. Armstrong, and the grading on this road will be finished within a few weeks.

Armstrong, who resides at Lisbon has also been awarded the contract by the commissioners of Jefferson county for the erection of a new concrete bridge in Smithfield township, that county, on his bid of $10,800. Work on this project will begin within 15 days.

Campolo, Heeney to Clash at Brooklyn

New York, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Victorio Campolo and Tom Heeney clash tonight at Ebbets Field. The bout, scheduled for last night, was postponed due to inclement weather.

The weighing in process yesterday revealed that the South American giant will have an 18 pound advantage over Heeney.

Promoter Humbert Fugazy authorized the announcement that he intends to petition the State Athletic Commission to instruct referees to waive disqualification powers for minor fouls. He hopes this to eliminate unsatisfactory endings to bouts.

Fight Results

At Cleveland—Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, won decision over Tommy Grogan of Omaha in ten rounds.

At Duluth—King Tut Minnecapolis lightweight, knocked out Al Ramma of Germany in second round (10). Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, gave a four round exhibition.

At Grand Rapids—Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City light-heavyweight, knocked out Sandy Seifert of Pittsburgh in first round (10).

Newsies Win Again

Salem Newsies defeated the German school lads, 10-2, in a five-inning clash Wednesday. Roth and Fritzman formed the German's batteries, while Bonelli hurled and Trombitas caught for the victors.

Puritans Voted By Modern Ballot Plan

Boston, Aug. 15.—The Puritans of New England contributed to the vote by ballot to the American form of government, says Prof. Samuel E. Morrison authority on early American history.

The voters in the Massachusetts Bay Colony expressed their opinions of various candidates with grains of corn, black beans. Later the paper ballot was substituted.

Virginia, on the other hand, followed the old English custom of voting by word of mouth, but to putter with most of the remaining colonies later adopted the ballot.

"TWIN BEDS"

And so they were married. Contrary to the usual rule, the wedding comes first and not last, in the rollicking First National Vitaphone 100 per cent talking comedy "Twin Beds," starring Jack Mulhall, which comes to the State theater tonight.

Mulhall meets, falls in love with and marries his leading lady, Patsy Ruth Miller, right in the first reel, and then, in the words of the old saying, "When a man marries his troubles begin."

Twin beds and a proposed trip to Europe provide most of the argument, but a lot of wild and unexpected happenings keep the fun going merrily all through the picture.

"Twin Beds" was adapted from the stage farce by Margaret Mayo and Salisbury Field, the adaptation being done by F. McGraw Willis.

Al Santelli directed and a splendid cast includes Gertrude Astor, Armand Kalz, Ben Hendricks, Jr., Eddie Gribbon, Knute Erickson, Edythe Chapman, Nita Martin, Jocelyn Lee and Zasu Pitts.

"Twin Beds" is the first solo-starring vehicle for Mulhall since he was recently elevated to stardom.

"THE CIRCUS"

Shoes, battered, old, misshapen, weary, pathetic, flat at heel, shoes salvaged from rubbish heaps.

A pair of such shoes have earned their owner a revenue of millions of dollars. They are the trademark of Charlie Chaplin, known as the most prosperous and most popular comedian of all time. The screen has sent him into the far corners of the earth to set humanity laughing—with his eloquent shoes. They are the same in Charlie's newest comedy, "The Circus," at the Royal theater.

Charlie Chaplin never disappoints. He is the one known quantity, the unfailing clown, the constant Northern star of films. In this story of circus life, of which Charlie accidentally becomes a part, his genius for fun-making is again clothed in the trick derby, over-rompy shoes, funny little moustache and flexible cane.

The girl, who wears a fluffy skirt and rides a great white steed, is Merna Kennedy, 18 years old, and blessed with red hair and blue green eyes. This is Merna's first picture role, for she went from the musical comedy stage direct to the part of Charlie Chaplin's leading lady. Miss Kennedy, it is pleasant to report, is more than pretty. She gives an intelligent, restrained performance, and her characterization is always believable.

ELECTRIC CHAIR FAILS TO WORRY SLAYER OF GIRL

Jury Deliberates Less

On Case

PUBLIC LAUDING OHIO PROSECUTOR

Motion For New Trial Will Be Filed Soon

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Dr. James Howard Snook is today a convicted man.

Snook in the electric chair will be the glorious end of the philanthropic professor who hammered and dashed Miss Thora Hix, his co-ed sweetheart, to death on a lonely rifle range on the night of June 13. He will be compelled to make that ominous march to the "chair," right trowser leg in from the knee down, much in the same manner as have had Gray, the sashweave slayer, Paul Jaworski, the Pennsylvania killer, and other comparatively recent notorious murderers.

But the doctor isn't worrying about it. He made that plain in an interview in his cell at the county jail today.

"I haven't thought about it," said Snook when asked how he felt about the prospect of entering "the little green door" that leads to the electric chair.

Reading Magazine

The "poker-faced" steel-nerved hammer slayer was reading a

Judge Scarlett Has Sent Four to Chair

Columbus, O., Aug. 15.—Dr. James H. Snook will be the fifth in whom Judge Henry L. Scarlett has sentenced to the electric chair. The other four were:

Charles Arnold, who killed his landlady; Henry White, who shot and killed his wife; Stanley Forbes, who killed a policeman; and Leo Matlock, who cut the throat of his mother-in-law.

Snook may be sentenced next week.

When visited by reporters, he was unperturbed, as usual.

"Have you any statement to make?" he was asked.

"No," he replied. "Before I could do anything like that I would have to consult my counsel."

"Did you tell everything about the case when you were on the stand?" was another question.

"No," he answered. "I have lots left over. There are salient facts yet to be told."

He reminded his audience that his "affair" with Miss Hix lasted three years, whereas he "had only six or eight hours to tell it."

He evidently meant his direct examination for he had been on the witness stand seven hours, including cross examination.

"Did he have recalled slitting the doctor's throat with his pen knife he replied he had not."

Is there any truth to the report that Mrs. Snook plans to divorce you?" he was asked.

"No indeed," he related. "She was in court yesterday, wasn't she?"

Snook refused to comment upon the plans of his lawyers to file motion for a new trial. He said he felt "pretty good, everything considered."

If he felt in any way apprehensive over the prospect of going to his death in the electric chair he concealed it well beneath his levity. His appetite remains good. He ate a hearty meal of pork and beans.

LIGHTNING STROKE TAKES TWO LIVES

Streams Overflow Into Farm Lands; Dam In Danger

Philadelphia, Aug. 15.—Eight fatalities and property damage that will run into six figures were attributed today either directly or indirectly to the series of severe electrical storms that swept this vicinity in the past 24 hours. Four of the deaths were due to lightning and four to drownings.

Five storms swept the city alone beginning with a torrential downpour in the afternoon and continuing until far past midnight. The fertile Olney Valley in Eastern Berks county also was hard hit for the second day in succession.

Auto Takes Plunge

Three of the drownings took place at the height of the downpour last night when an automobile containing four occupants crashed through a bridge rail into the Delaware river near pier 75 here. The rain blinded the driver.

The first death from lightning occurred when James Thompson, a gardener from Wayne, was killed while working on an estate in Bryn Mawr. A short time later Arthur Varvill, a roofer, was killed by another bolt while at work.

Two other persons were killed, another paralyzed and a third seriously injured by a bolt which struck a peach-packing plant at Hammon, N. J. The dead: Tony Orselle, 22, of Hammon; and Annie Garard, 21, of Alamo, Ga. Miss Garard was a Georgia school teacher who came north to spend the summer with relatives. She was working in the plant to obtain extra money for her wedding wardrobe.

Crude Oil Blazes

About 15,000 gallons of crude oil went up in flames at Boothwyn, near Chester, when fire followed in the wake of a bolt of lightning.

Ironstone Creek that winds through the Sleepy Olney Valley in eastern Berks county again left its banks following the torrential downpour that swept over that section for the second day in succession. Riverbank again was hard hit and thousands of acres of land were inundated. Several families were reported marooned near Morvilly while a dam was threatened with destruction at Colebrookdale.

POLICE WRECK STORE IN RAID

Claim Betting Sponsored At Place; Deny Charges

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—William, 32, and Peter Sulzmann, 37, sons of Condemned John M. Sulzmann, were scheduled for appearance in court today with 14 others following a raid on the Sulzmann cigar store and barber shop.

The Sulzmann brothers faced charges of keeping an establishment for the recording of wagers. The 14 others arrested in the raid were held on charges of visiting a gambling place.

Captain Michael Harwood conducted the raid. His men wrecked the establishment, smashing furniture, ripping telephones and a telephone alleged racing focus.

Harwood claimed that his men took several telephone calls before ripping connections, from persons attempting to place horse race bets. The calls were taken as evidence.

Billy Sulzmann denied charges that his place was conducted as a gambling establishment. He characterized the raid as a "slap at my father."

Firemen Lose Fight To Save Man's Life

Akron, O., Aug. 15.—After a continuous fight of two days and two nights, Akron firemen lost to death and John E. Herzberger, 52, is dead here today. An effort to save him from pneumonia by artificial administration of oxygen failed.

The firemen worked in day and night shifts in administering the oxygen. It was the first time in the history of the Akron fire department that firemen have been called in a pneumonia case.

Abandon Hope In Search for Flier

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—Virtually all hope that John Kasper, co-pilot on the ill-fated Thompson Aeronautical corporation amphibian plane, Miss Detroit, was still alive was abandoned today when the rescue planes and coast guard cutters returned without news of the flier.

Kasper was the only one of the four persons aboard the plane who is unaccounted for. Cy Caldwell, pilot, Mrs. Robert Little of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and C. A. Lupole of Patterson, N. J., were rescued by lake steamers.

The plane crashed late Tuesday in a dense fog and electrical storm.

BOMBS HURLED AT THEATERS IN AKRON, DAMAGE

Explosives Fall Short Of Marks; Nearby Places Are Rocked

Akron, O., Aug. 15.—War against theater bombers was renewed by police here today following attempts to blow up the Gem and Dayton neighborhood theaters last night.

The bombs were hurled toward the theater buildings from passing automobiles. In both instances, however, the bombs fell shy of their marks, causing more damage to nearby establishments than to the theaters themselves.

The bomb which was originally intended for the Dayton theater, landed in front of a confectionery store next door, causing approximately $200 damages. At the Gem, the bomb exploded between the theater building and the structure next to it.

The explosions mark the seventh and eighth in the three-month, if theater bombing war which resulted from a wage disagreement between motion picture operators and owners.

New Air Marker Installed In City

The Standard Oil company has just completed installation of airway marking of Salem on the company bulk station at lower Broadway according to Mr. H. J. Allen, Salem representative of Standard Oil.

These airway markings are being rushed to completion throughout the state in nearly 630 cities and towns.

"These airway markings place Ohio in the lead of those states actively interested in aviation," declared Mr. H. J. Allen. "They will be an aid to safe flying in Ohio and will encourage more extensive air travel throughout the state."

Prominent Farmer Dies Suddenly

Kenton, O., Aug. 15.—"Well, I guess I have said enough!" After he had just spoken those words at a public hearing on ditch assessments, Oliver Bell, 66, prominent Hardin county farmer, dropped dead in the courthouse here.

Bell had just completed a speech opposing the property tax assessment and he ended the speech with the foregoing quotation. The last words of a prosperous career.

Pyke Hearing

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—Hearing of Mrs. Bernice S. Pike, Democratic member of the board of elections, on charges of calling a secret meeting of both workers in the interest of a campaign against Cleveland's charter amendment, was opened here today.

Prosperity Predicted For Period By Ohio Economist

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—Continued prosperity for the remainder of the year is the encouraging picture painted by Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, prominent Cleveland banker and economist, in a business review issued today.

"It still seems probable that the figures for industrial output and for profits in the third quarter will reach new high levels in many lines, and it is beginning to appear almost equally sure that the momentum of activity and of confidence will carry through to the end of the year in enough lines to insure a long list of new high annual records for 1929 in trade, industry, transportation and finance," Col. Ayres said.

The autumn and holiday trade of retail stores and mail-order houses promises to be better this year than ever before.

NAVY REDUCTION PROCEEDS APACE; 'ADMIRALS' TALK

President Shows Regard
For Naval Men In Sea Problem

CRUISERS FORM BIG OBSTACLE

Search for "Yard Stick" To Measure Equality Of U. S.-Britain

Washington, Aug. 15.—Negotiations for a British-American naval agreement proceeded apace today with the navy high command somewhat mollified over the assurances given by President Hoover that the expert views of "the admirals" are not to be disregarded while "the statesmen" reach an agreement among themselves.

It is no secret that the new administration's navy policy has come in for some severe, if anonymous, criticism in high naval circles. It began with Ambassador Dawes' famous remark in his pilgrim's speech in London that the failure of most disarmament conferences could be attributed to "the admirals" and that if disarmament were ever realized it would have to be by "statesmen" taking the matter out of naval hands.

Since that speech of Dawes' the navy has been in a suspicious frame of mind concerning the whole trend of the Washington-London negotiations. President Hoover's summary suspension of the cruiser-building program, upon which the navy had counted to overcome British cruiser superiority, only served to increase the suspicion and the covert sniping at the administration's policy.

Navy Heads Consulted

It was to allay this suspicion and still the criticism, and obtain, if possible, the sincere cooperation of the navy heads that President Hoover had the general board at the White House yesterday for breakfast. "The admirals" were acquainted with the whole state of the negotiations with the MacDonald government for a naval agreement, and were given an opportunity to express their own opinions as to what should and should not be done.

How successful the president's gesture toward "the admirals" will remain to be seen, but at any rate the navy now feels that it is to have a choice in and be consulted about the reductions which President Hoover and Premier MacDonald are mutually desirous of making.

The whole sticking point in the Anglo-American negotiations is the question of cruisers. On virtually every other point, there is already substantial agreement between London and Washington.

Yet, despite the "substantial progress" that is regularly reported from both the state department and the British foreign office, there still exists a tremendous gulf of difference as to how Britain's cruiser superiority is to be met.

Scrapping Not Approved

British a dimly is hard set against any extensive scrapping of cruisers in order to come down to the American level. Apparently, the admiralty has succeeded in winning the MacDonald government to support of this position. On the other hand, for reasons of economy and other wise, President Hoover is unwilling to launch upon a building program to bring the American navy up to cruiser parity with the British.

There the negotiations have stuck for weeks, with "the statesmen" on both sides trying to find a yardstick which will be capable of a new system of measuring naval strength. Thus far they haven't found it.

WEATHER FINE AS SHIP LEAVES

70-Mile An Hour Is Progress Reported By Eckener

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 15.—As dawn broke over Europe the history-making Graf Zeppelin was leaving northward over central Germany bound from here to Tokyo on the long second leg of her round-the-world flight.

Thousands joined in throaty "hoheis" wishing Godspeed to the 20 passengers and the crew of 41 aboard as the mighty liner of the air ported her blunt nose toward the sky at 4:35 a. m. today (10:35 p. m. last night Salem time).

Fine weather conditions greeted the Graf at the beginning of her flight and she maintained an average speed of about 70 miles an hour during the first few hours as she headed toward Berlin.

At 5:30 a. m. (11:30 p. m. Salem time), she radioed that she was passing over Ulm in Wurttemberg, about 60 miles northwest of here. A little more than an hour later, at 6:45 a. m. (12:45 a. m. Salem time), she reported she was passing over Nuernberg, Bavaria, about 150 miles northeast of this starting point.

Forges Steadily Ahead

Forging steadily onward on a northeast course, the Graf passed Bayreuth, Bavaria, at 7:20 a. m. (3:20 a. m. Salem time). At the time of passing over Bayreuth, which is 175 miles from here, she radioed that "all was well."

A short time later, at 7:45 a. m. (3:45 a. m. Salem time), she passed over Hof, near the border of Bavaria and Saxony, and 200 miles northeast of here.

The start of the Graf on the longest non-stop flight ever attempted was an auspicious one. Everything went smoothly.

Bathed in a glow of ground lights which reflected resplendently on her silver-sheeted sides, the huge craft made an awe-inspiring picture as she soared upward less than ten minutes after having been moved out from her hangar.

Steadily gaining height she headed into the northeast and in a few minutes only a dim outline of her cigar-like contour and the gleam of her cabin lights could be seen.

Soon even these disappeared from view as the huge crowd on the landing field gaped upward toward a sky from which the night shadows were just beginning to be dispelled by the first pink of dawn.

STARK OFFICIAL DETAILS ARREST

Roumanian Vice Consul Protests Actions of Authority

Canton, O., Aug. 15.—A detailed explanation of the arrest of John G. Popovici, former Roumanian vice consul at Cleveland, on charges of non-support, was forwarded to Gov. Myers V. Cooper at Columbus today by H. W. Harter, Jr., Stark county prosecutor.

The explanation, it is reported, was requested by Gov. Cooper following a protest filed by the Roumanian government against Popovici's arrest. It was charged that the former Roumanian consul underwent harsh and insulting treatment at the time of his arrest.

An affidavit, signed by Chief Deputy George A. Dailey, states that Popovici was handcuffed only after he resisted arrest.

The former Roumanian consul now has $1,000 bond on file to guarantee $50 monthly support of his ten-year-old daughter, Betty. A suit for divorce, filed by Popovici's wife, Mrs. Helen Popovici of Canton, is pending in the U. S. Supreme court.

MODERN STYLES IN BUILDING OF HOMES CHANGED

M. L. Hans, Salem Builder Reviews Changes In Construction

Present trends in small home construction include a number of outstanding changes, according to Matthew L. Hans, Salem contractor. Kitchens are more nearly alike in all houses than any other room, Hans states. The built-in garage has worked its way down from the more expensive homes into the moderate priced list. The front porch is rapidly going out of style. A sun parlor on the rear of a house has become fairly common, and the rear living room is no longer a curiosity. The majority of living rooms are about two-thirds as wide as they are long. Dining rooms are usually more nearly square, and bedrooms are larger in two-story houses than in one-story dwellings.

Homes Improved
"Most people agree that present home design is improving steadily," said Hans. "One reason for this is that a designer is now more often able to start with a good setting for the house than formerly."

The lowest priced houses now being built in quantity in the larger cities today are of five and six rooms, with one-story construction apparently predominating for the five-room, and two-story for the six-room size, according to the survey. The six-room, two-story house is favored more in eastern cities, whereas in cities of the middle and far west, the five-room bungalow is in the lead in the lowest priced group, Hans states.

Moreover, the contractor gives some reassurance to those desiring the fact that the home has been surrendered as a place for social life. It evidently hasn't. A fireplace, that traditional nucleus for home sentiment, is being built in by far the majority of homes today, and a sun porch, which furnishes additional room for hospitality, is likewise demanded by the majority of home builders and purchasers. Radios, too, Hans declared, are serving to retain the home as the center of the family's social life pattern.

Three New Six-Cylinder Machines To Be Sent To Smith Garage

J. G. Smith, of the Smith garage, dealer in Chrysler automobiles, has announced the introduction of three new lines of six-cylinder machines, bearing the name of Walter P. Chrysler. The cars are on display in the showrooms of the garage on East High st.

Many noteworthy engineering advancements have been embodied in the new cars. Among the wholly original features introduced by the "77" and "70" are:

NEW STUDIES TO BE ADDED WHEN COLLEGE OPENS

F. F. Wells Succeeds Miss Ella G. Beeson As Manager-Owner

Special private secretarial classes are now being opened at the Salem Business College, which is now under the management of F. F. Wells, formerly of Columbus. Wells purchased the college from Miss Ella G. Beeson, former owner and manager, July 1st.

Introduction of several new studies into the college curriculum will feature this year's college sessions under Wells' management. Several new teachers will also be selected and appointments announced soon. The college, rated high throughout Ohio, has been in existence in Salem for 35 years. It was organized in 1894 by J. W. Butcher, of Beaver Falls, Pa., and two years later was taken over by W. H. Mathews, widely known Salem man, who at that time was associated with the institution as teacher.

Mathews operated the school, together with the Alliance Business College until 1923, when Miss Beeson assumed ownership and management. She was also a former instructor in class work and will continue her association with the school as teacher in the commercial department.

Enrollment of 100
During the 35 years the school has been in existence it has steadily maintained an enrollment of approximately 100 students. An increase is expected this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells have been in the city since completing the sale and are effecting several changes at the college. The complete course of teaching, and the faculty for the fall and winter term of night and day sessions have not been completely arranged for as yet.

Wells is remembered by many Salem residents as a former Salem high school instructor during the term of 1916-17. He attended Zaner college and graduated from Bliss college, Columbus, in 1916. He was head of the commercial department of Benton High, Benton, Ill., from 1919 until 1923, and later served as head accountant and cashier of the Franklin County Mining company of Benton. In 1925 he became connected with Bellamy and Christie, certified public accountants, in Benton, and later was elected superintendent of the bookkeeping department of Bliss college, Pittsburgh.
